eighth.

Through the dreadful carnage the old cuard stood firm as a rock behind Anderson. Arthur Fletcher simply ran amuck around the middle section of the infield. He had an even dozen assists and one put out, and not more than couple of his chances could be called easy ones. There were two slips in New York's game that might have proven costly. In the third inning, with proven costly. In the third inning, with Wingo on first and only one out, Mitchell was sent in to bat for Knetzer. Merkle got the resulting hard grounder while almost a-straddle of the bag. In his anxiety for a double play he threw to Fletcher before he had observed the necessary formallty of tagging his own cushlon. The new was faulty and now cushion. The peg was faulty and no-body was retired.

Doyle Starts Double Play.

Doyle raked in Groh's swift hopper, tagged Mitchell and doubled Heine with a pretty toss to Merkie.

Killifer followed with a single, taking an extra base on Kauff's fumble, but Wingo raised to Kauff, while Fletcher attended to Loudon. Fisher batted for Dale and opened the eighth with a single. Dooin threw out Groh. Doyle took Neale's pop up and then tossed out Herzog. Chase and Griffith both singled with none gone in the ninth. Killifer filed to Burns. Wingo forced Griffith and Burns ended the game with a pretty running catch of Louden's long liner.

Herzog fu...ided Burns's grounder. Robertson's low hit took a lucky bound over Griffith's head for three bases and Burns scored the first run. Doyle tripled to deep centre, scoring Robertson. Groh held Larry while he pegged out Kauft. Fletcher fanned, but Merkle doubled to left for another score.

the mound in three innings McGraw's pupils treated Dale even more shamefully.

New York wasn't able to do very much with Dale for three innings. This young gentleman circumvented them by keeping the ball out of reach, and though he doled out two passes in two separate innings he escaped by teasing his subjects into going after bad balls.

Form Brown and perpending him off Phipps Moshier, a fourteen-year-old boy, won a clay target shoot at Boston from a big field of men, and won it although it required three shootoffs. The lad hit twenty-five straight in the last shootoff, and his total for the shoot fromer was 90. Before the contest began he expressed a wish not to shoot from a certain trap, but that was the one he drew and he had to shoot from it, which he did without losing any of his skill.

The affair is interesting in showing Dale collected nerve enough to try to stick the pellet over the platter along about the seventh, and what happened to him thereafter was simply criminal. Five consecutive hits and an intentional pass gave the Giants four runs in the seventh. Six hits furnished was no business beating men competitors, is wholly unconscious men competitors, is wholly unconscious men competitors, is wholly unconscious chance of any stage fright, and has the knack race.
